Paragraphs of the Week

Chief Justice Charles J. Dunn of the Maine Supreme Court, who was admitted to the Maine Bar at 19, died at his Orono home Nov. 10th. He was 67. Associate Justice Charles P. Barnes of Houlton succeeds him in the office.

Ireland has protested to the United States against being considered within the "combat zone," which places her ports on the list of those at which American ships are forbidden to call during the war.

The U. S. Supreme Court has ruled that the states may adopt almost any measures to govern or restrict the sale of liquor, and that their powers in the matter supersede the Federal Interstate Commerce rules.

The CCC crew of 13 men established at the mouth of Rapid River to patrol the area where five Berlin, N. H., hunters disappeared, has been recalled. Continued search of nearly five weeks has proved futile and authorities doubt if the bodies will be found before spring.

The Works Progress Administration has changed its ruling on payments to WPA workers who served with the Maine National Guard during its recent maneuvers. Only administrative workers will receive WPA benefits for that period. It had been officially announced that project laborers would lose no compensation during army service.

From Philadelphia comes word the Third U. S. Court of Appeals has ruled that school children need not salute the flag if such action is contrary to their religious beliefs.

The Unemployment Compensation Commission in Michigan denied benefits, estimated at $750,000 a week, to more than 50,000 Chrysler employees who have been idle because of a month's strike.

The War Department has received, from the Maine Highway Planning Survey, the data it had requested about roads and bridges in a ten-mile radius of Portland.

Charles H. Hogan, 89, who made railroad history by driving engine 999 at the incredible speed of 112.5 miles per hour in 1893, died in Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 11.

The first shipment of fighting planes since the lifting of the arms embargo was ready to leave San Pedro, Calif., harbor, over the last week-end. Operations were kept secret.

Everett F. Groaton, member of the Maine Development Commission, in an address before the Bethel Chamber of Commerce last week said there is a definite trend to decentralize industry. He believes it puts Maine in a position to attract and hold new business.

The Canadian Government is making a clearing 20 feet wide the entire length of the Maine-Quebec boundary. The project is expected to make policing of the international line easier for customs, immigration and Royal Canadian Mounted police.

Seven 23-ton U. S. Army bombers with 56 officers and men are on a good will flight to South America. They landed at Lima, Peru, nine hours after leaving the Canal Zone.

Mrs. Elsie Potter is working for Mrs. Gilbert Brown.

Mrs. Lena Shaw is moving into her house on Mill Hill.

Miss Rebecca Gordon spent the week-end in Portsmouth, N. H.

Phillip Brown of Portland was at the home farm hunting last week.

Mrs. May L. Kimball of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holt and son of Canton, and Raymond Holt of East Bethel were callers in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. William Von Zint spent the week-end with relatives in Massachusetts. They were accompanied from Portland by Mrs. Moses Brown.

Although only a small crowd was present at the beano party at Union School house Saturday evening, a fine time was had by all. Plans are under way for the second in the series on Dec. 9th.

John Hoadlie, Henry Hutcherson and Howard Donovan, all of Rockland, Mass., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Andrews, and with Lenwood Andrews they are now on a hunting trip to Dead River.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cummings of Bryant Pond have taken over the "Trap Corner" store and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mersurve will soon go to Bryant Pond to the C. C. Dudley store where they will carry on business. They will be greatly missed by their many friends here but the best of good wishes go with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Packard, Frank and Ernest Packard were recent supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Andrews.

The Willing Workers were very pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Vera Buck on Wednesday of last week. The next meeting will be Wednesday, Nov. 22, when they will be guests at an all day meeting of Mrs. Florence Perham.

Funeral services for Robert Whitman of Woodstock will be held at I. W. Andrews funeral parlor on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes of West Paris will speak words of comfort to the relatives and friends.

EAST STONEHAM

The new kitchen, which is being added to the church vestry, is about completed. It will be ready for use Thursday at the regular Circle supper. The whole Parish is invited to the dedication.

Carlton Barker, rural carrier, has been on a vacation for the past two weeks. Carrol Curtis has been substituting.

Louise Gibson and Edith Grant spent the week-end at their home in Limerick.

Carrol Curtis got his deer Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Pendexter of Brownfield have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Files for the past week. Mr. Files and Mr. Pendexter spent a few days at Machias hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dudley have gone to Washington, Maine, for a week's hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bickford attended the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Will Rice at Norway Friday.

Christine Nelson of Boston was week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nelson.

Ina Good is staying with Carla Richardson for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Culbert of Harrison have been staying at their camp for the past week while hunting.

ROWE HILL

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Bryant and Wilmer Bryant visited Mrs. C. F. Ring at East Sumner Saturday.

Miss Hope Ring, R. N., of Plymouth, N. H., and Albert Ring of Lewiston were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Colby Ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Ring of North Waterford were at Colby Ring's Sunday.

Henry Lapham of Milton called on Ray Hanscom Sunday afternoon.

Dr. True's Elixir

WINS NEW PRAISE!

A mother writes: "I am thankful that I have discovered this excellent laxative and round worm expeller for the children. It is so mild and gentle in action."

Mrs. Agnes Quigley, Brighton, Mass.

For 88 years watchful mothers have given their children Dr. True's Elixir as a laxative and round worm expeller. The following symptoms may indicate the presence of these harmful human parasites: offensive breath, variable appetite, nausea, nervousness, grinding of teeth, starting in sleep, etc.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

• TAKING SILHOUETTE PICTURES

Silhouette snapshot, taken with sun behind subject. Note that the profile view adds effectiveness to this picture.

HAVE you shot any silhouette pictures? These are easy to take, indoors or out, and they have unusually interesting decorative quality.

The best time for outdoor silhouettes is late afternoon, when the sun is quite low in the sky. Place your subject on a small ridge or elevation, squarely between the sun and the camera. This is important—let the subject shield the camera from direct sun rays. Now, make a snapshot exposure, if using a box camera. With a fast-lens camera, give an exposure of 1/25 second at f/16.

In taking these, and other silhouette shots, pose your subject in profile—not facing toward or away from the camera, but sideways to it.
This yields the most effective silhouette outline.

You can take good indoor silhouettes of a person in the daytime.
Pose your subject, in profile, at a window which looks out upon a brilliantly-lighted outdoor scene, or facing the clear sky. Then make either a snapshot exposure, or a very short time exposure with a very small lens opening.

To take silhouettes at night indoors, stretch a white bedsheet smoothly across a doorway, flood light it brightly from behind, and pose the subject about two feet in front of it for the picture. Load the camera with high speed film, of course; and for box-camera snapshots, use two amateur flood bulbs in cardboard reflectors about five feet behind the sheet.

As a quick alternative method, direct the light of a flood bulb toward a white or pale-tinted wall, to create a "bright spot." Then pose your subject squarely between the flood bulb and the camera. This arrangement is especially good for informal silhouette portraits. With high speed film, and one large bulb about two feet from the wall, you can take box-camera snapshots. Use a reflector with the bulb, to concentrate the light on the wall.

When you leave your silhouette film with a photo-finisher, attach a note, "Please print for silhouette effect." Then he will know just what you wish.

Try silhouettes—all the different types described. They're fun, and add novelty to your picture collection.

MOST people who use Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills say that one pill usually relieves their headaches. In the regular package, Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills cost one penny each. In the economy packages, one penny buys 1 1/4 pills.

Why Don't You Try Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills?

They taste good, act promptly, do not upset the stomach, contain no opiates or laxative medicines.

You may be miles away from a drug store when you get your next attack of Headache, Neuralgia, or Muscular Aches and Pains.
Why not get a package of Dr.
Miles Anti-Pain Pills today and be prepared for emergencies?

TRAVELER JURY

Traveler jury was empaneled Thursday morning with Howard O. Coy of Oxford as foreman. Other members of the jury were:

Minnie Curtis, Paris
Elwood Hamilton, Denmark
Edith K. Howe, Bethel
Perry C. Lapham, Bethel
Helena A. D. Nelson, Norway
Abbie W. Nutter, Fryeburg
William Russell Sr., Stow
Mabel Saunders, Waterford
Florence Stearns, Hiram
Frank D. Sturtevant, Hebron
Howard Wakefield, Brownfield
Supernumeraries: Ida Farnum, Woodstock; J. M. Gardner, Waterford; Henry E. Judd, Paris; Harry B. McKeen, Lovell; Harry A. Spiller, Norway, and Carl Stanley, Porter.

After the prisoners were arraigned Court adjourned until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The case of Roland McHendrick and Rose M. Casey, both of Hebron, against the Maine Central Transportation Co. was settled out of Court Friday. McHendrick sought $1000 for personal injury and damages to his car when his car crashed the rear of a Maine Central bus in April, 1936, and Miss Casey, his passenger, asked $2000 for injuries. Douglas Buotte of Rumford asked for $10,000 in a damage action against the Vincent Company, Inc. Buotte claimed this amount for illness and loss of appetite following the alleged discovery of a dead mouse in a beverage bottle. The case was referred, by agreement of counsel, and there was no jury trial.

Frank Torrey of Lewiston, pleading guilty to a charge of forgery, was sentenced to serve six months in jail.

Sentence was deferred in the case of Jerry Blair of Lewiston, who was charged with larceny. First pleading not guilty, he changed his plea to nolo.

Alphonse Lizotte of Rumford was sentenced to 30 days in jail on charges of assaulting an officer and escaping from jail.

Vincent Dugay of Mexico, pleading guilty to assault, received a 30 day sentence.

Secretly indicted, Carl Emery and Claud Snow of West Paris pleaded nolo to charges of practicing barbering and conducting a barber shop without a license. Upon payment of costs, the cases were filed.

The case against Henry Lapham of Milton Plantation, who was charged with obstructing a highway, was defaulted.

Leonel Valle of Auburn was sentenced to the men's reformatory on a larceny charge. The indictment alleged that he stole a stove from Walter Emery's camp in Riley.

Arthur Drake of Hartford, Conn., indicted for forgery, was sentenced to serve from two to four years in prison.

The case of Rena Dube of Rumford, who appealed a lower court sentence for larceny, was dismissed.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Luther F. (Freeman) Winslow of North Lovel, who had been indicted for drunken driving.

After his trial commenced, Alex Frigo of Rumford, charged with eavesdropping, changed his plea to guilty and was placed on probation for two years.

Volmore and Joffre Girardin of Livermore were fined $25 and costs of $12.50 each, and Arthur Muse, also of Livermore, was placed on probation for a year. All were charged with assault.

Arthur White of Rumford was sentenced to serve from one to two years in prison. He was charged with assault and battery.

Miss Barbara Moore and Miss Theresa Bushnell, students at Bates College, spent the week-end at Miss Moore's home in town.

Ernest Brown returned to his duties in the army last week after a furlough of several months. He expects to leave New York soon for Panama.

On Oct. 11, 1935, we opened our doors for business and we are now starting on our fifth year as dealers in New and Second Hand Goods, and Auctioneering. We want to thank the good people of Bethel and surrounding towns for their liberal patronage and many kindnesses shown us during our stay, and beg to state that we are here to stay, with a larger and better stock and are continually adding new lines all the time. So after you have tried them all come in and see if Charles has not got it, and if he does not have it he can get it very quickly, if it is on the market. Again we thank you all, and wish you all a prosperous year ahead.

Very Cordially Yours,

BETHEL AUCTION CO.

HANOVER

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Dickson celebrated their 58th wedding anniversary quietly at their home Monday, Nov. 6th. Their daughter, Mrs. Minnie Thompson, presented them with a decorated anniversary cake.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon for the late James Hayford, who passed away at his home in Felsmere, Fla., last Wednesday. Rev. Mr. Brewster officiated. The large number of knights, sisters and friends testified to the high esteem in which he was held. His passing saddens the whole community.

Edwin Horr of Cumberland Mills is the guest of his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Cheslie Saunders. He was one of the lucky hunters, as he got a nice buck deer Monday morning.

Mrs. C. F. Saunders inspected Ellis Glen Temple, Andover, Tuesday evening.

Mishemokwa Temple held their inspection Friday afternoon, Nov. 10. Lunch was served at noon. Marion Mason, president of the State Past Chiefs Association, was present.

C. F. Saunders went to the Lakes Monday to close his camp for the winter.

Mrs. Minnie Thompson spent the holiday week-end in Boston and vicinity.

A surprise birthday party was tendered Mrs. Emily Dickson at the home of Mrs. Leon Wilson, with Mrs. Hattie McPherson as assistant hostess. The evening was spent socially and refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Those present were Mrs. Effie Dyer, Georgia Abbott, Rose Howe, Eberdyke, Mrs. Minnie Thompson and the honor guest and hostesses.

HOWE HILL

Sunday callers at Loring Roberts' were Mrs. Abbie Hayes of Locke Mills, Moses Corbett, Ella Day, Letty Day and Maud Swan all of West Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Robley Chase of Locke Mills.

Mrs. Evelyn Roberts has returned from Auburn, where she has been visiting her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant. Laurice Strother, Wilbur Downing and Frederick Hall, of Oxford, took dinner with Lee Roberts recently, after which, accompanied by L. J., they enjoyed a hunting trip at Sunday River.

Mrs. Ora Swan of Locke Mills was a recent caller at L. J. Roberts'.

William Vye and Charles Bryant of Auburn, accompanied by William Roberts of this vicinity, enjoyed a hunting trip at Albany Saturday.

Robert Cole was among the lucky hunters. He got a deer last week. Mrs. Florence Strother is spending a few days with her parents Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Roberts.

William Roberts spent the week-end in Auburn.

Lee Roberts called at Sunset View Farm, East Oxford, Friday night.

UPTON

The regular Grange meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Pratt last Saturday evening.

The Grange supper was held on Wednesday, Nov. 8. Over $8.00 was cleared after paying expenses.

Lyman Lane and Paul Fuller have finished laying the water pipes to their homes.

The Misses Arline Judkins and Sylvia Barnett were week-end guests of the Misses Marion Colby and Pearl Barnett in Bethel.

Rev. George Duke of Bradford, N. H., preached here Sunday. He and his wife and two year old daughter were week-end guests of Rev. and Mrs. John Manter.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeaton of Beverly, Mass., are staying with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Allen while here hunting.

H. W. Whitney is not very well. Ban Barnett came out from camp and went to South Paris last week, where he got his naturalization papers.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Richards and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fuller and family of Bath and Mr. and Mrs. John Fuller of Bethel were Sunday guests of relatives in town.

Several deer have been tagged recently.

Mrs. Jennie Brown went to court as witness for Mrs. Hazel Fuller last week.

E. S. Lane was on grand jury at South Paris last week.

CHAPTER IX

"At last the effort is on the job!" This was Jebb's greeting from a ponderous Turk at the door of a shabby khan. The man had all the look of a retired athlete, whose sinews of steel had degenerated into swaddles of fat. He recognized Jebb on the instant, and he was big enough to be rememberable on his own account; but Jebb could not recall an ounce of him. Hafiz Mustafa bustled about making coffee and preparing a narghile for his honored guest. He spoke what English he had with a strong flavor of the Bowery. In whose environs he had picked up his smattering.

"How you like my little khan, eh? He is not so worse, I think, huh?" "It is beautiful," said Jebb, though he could not imagine a more doleful spot.

"It is not such a dam racket out here as in New York City, eh? For long time I had a how they say?—a hash-house on Washeenton Street. Yes, I get lots of the long green in America and I buy that little hash-house from an Osmanli who is home-seeek for Stambul. Bine-by, I get the home-seeek too.

"So at last I get out for big pile of dough and come home. Eet ces not such a mach business here, but I can rest and think. Eet is a small walk out to the beeg fields where the tombstones is nice to rest on and smelt and dream the nice long dream. And she is out there, my little home-seeek I bring from America."

"You brought your wife from America?" Jebb inquired politely.

"Evet, effendi—I mean, sure, Mike, I bring her. She is dancer so much like on Broadway."

"A Turkish dancer?"

"Not on your life. She is pure American blood, comes from the great city of Weesconkeen. I see her dancer on night. I think she is most beautiful thing what ever see—she wear the little trunks and the cork boots and the spengles and she stand up on her toes like she enjoy it. Bine-by, she can love me, too, and we get married. She says she can tick of that tarrible life, and she can't get it out of her head. She is make a life in that city, thaller they live in America and the water spills over, and she is tarrible—how do you say?—scalded. Her pretty face is tarrible burned."

"But she is still beautiful to me, and her body is still the body like a scrawl from Circassia. But after that she hates to go out in the street."

"I tell her, 'You come home to Stambul where honest wives is wear the yildims—the veil, effendi. The veil is very kind thing. It keeps all women the same. Eet is more equality than the hat."

"Her name in Weesconkeen was Annie Mitchell, but I leave her new name—Osmanli name—Nayima, set eat one nice name—yes."

Jebb thought, yes indeed—not so pretty as Mirum, but a great improvement on Annie Mitchell.

"I used to have my khan near the Egyptian Bazaar," Hafiz went on. "But since my Nayima is out in grave there I like there better. In evening I sit there and smoke and sheek nobody is in hurry—nobody say, 'Get a move on, Hafiz!'"

"The Gladstone—they tell me you found it?"

"The Gladstone, effendi? What is that?"

"The bag—its value the—that thing of mine, you found?"

After another thoughtful of not yes, another mouthful of smoke,

Hafiz rose, and, entering the khan, brought forth the Gladstone bag. Jebb recognized it with intense delight. He wanted to caress it. It was the first material link to his substantial past.

He rummaged the contents with a sharpness of eye that might have offended a subtler Turk than Hafiz. "All is there, I think?" Hafiz asked, and Jebb nodded as he recognized every document he had collected in John Thatcher's cause. But he had cherished a wild hope of finding something more. With some embarrassment he asked: "You didn't find ten thousand dollars in here, did you?"

The Turk smiled. The Yankees always joked. His politely amiable smile was more convincing than any other disclaimer could have been.

"Oh, yes," he chuckled, "I find ten thousand dollars—in a peeg's eye."

"Would you mind telling me where you found this?"

"Sure, I'll tell you, but not untel the boss has something to eat."

"Oh, thank you. I'll go back to the Bristol Hotel for my dinner."

"The Bristol—not on your teen-type, Bo. It is so late you never get there. You must take a—how did they say?—a snack with me."

He would hear of nothing else, and Jebb was forced to resign himself to the delay, hoping that perhaps some clew might yet transpire to aid his further search.

Afterwards Hafiz began his story: "The day I feerst laid my eyes on to you—the old Padishah Abdul Hamid—whom Allah preserve!—if it please Allah—and I hope it does not was still wearing the great sword of Othman. But it was after the people from Salonia had come down and made him call back the Constitution. He took it off the ice—see?"

"When feerst the Young Turks come to town some of the ladies think everything going to be turned up-down. They throw off the yildims and go out to the streets, even to the theater. Some of them ride in carriage with their husbands. Some of them wear beeg hats from Paris. This make the reelegious people mad like what if in New York all the ladies is wear bathing suits on Broadway, yes?"

"Me and some pals is stopping a carriage and telling a lady she better go home and put on her veil or she's goin' to be very sorry. She is educated Osmanli lady; she makes poetry and writes a magazine, but she read too many French novels, she goes out in the high-heeled shoes, the tight clothes over the immoral corset, and her face is naked. She is scream when we tear off her big feathers. First theeng I know, somebody grabs me. I turn round, it is you, and you say: 'You keep quiet, I'm going to break every bone in your body if you say one mother word to that poor child!'"

The huge wrestler looked at the slender physician, then at his own face, a constructive crime, and laughed. There was no result in his superiority.

Jebb smiled, too, at the magnificence of this Vanderbilt Pierpontism, and asked:

"Why didn't you beat the life out of me?"

Hafiz smiled. "I see right away you are American, and the Americans is so nice to me—my Nayima is American, and the words you use they listen good to me. So I take your wrists and I hold you very gentle and talk to you nice and say in English, 'Please, mister, kill me, but spare my life.'"

"You say, 'If you let that lady go, I let you live a little while. I turn round and the lady is already vamoose. The other mens is want to have your blood, but I tell them you are a friend of a friend of mine, and they go away."

"Then I say, 'Boss, it's my treat,' and we sit down at a little table in a little khan and I blow you off to coffee. Bine-by, you say you got a date weel' the Padishah, and I say, 'So long, old pal, I stay and feenish these narghile!'"

"So you go and I stay. Bine-by, I see you have leaved this—Gladstone, yes?" on the ground by your table. Nobody knows your name or where you live at. I go to the American consulate. Nobody knows you. They say: 'Leave the bag here. We give it to him.' I say, 'Nix on the bag. I know about the American police. I keep it till my friend calls for it his own self.'"

"I wait long time, but at last you are here, and here is the Gladstone. Is that it all?"

Jebb sat in deep reverie, deeply dejected. Then he shook off the old sorrow, and prepared to go. He wondered what reward Hafiz would think appropriate. He decided to throw himself on Hafiz' mercy.

"I can't thank you enough, for finding this and keeping it for me. And now, how—how much do I owe you?"

"Look here, boss," Hafiz groaned, "have I act like a pliker, a panhandler, have I? I thought you and me was friends, I was doin' this as one American to a pal."

Jebb took his big limp hand and tried to wring it.

"Excuse me," he said, "I'm ashamed of myself."

"Let her go at that," said Hafiz; "cut it out, and clean it off the slate. When you get back to New York, if you'll stop in at some Osmanli restaurant down on Washeenton Street or somewhere and tell them you know me, and I was lookin' well, and sent my best regards—they'll blow you to the best there is in the joint, and I'll call it square."

"I promise," said Jebb. "And now I've really got to go."

Hafiz mustered energy enough to rise.

"It's kind of dark—and these streets isn't any too safe for a glaur. I walk weel' you," said Hafiz, "to the landing-place where you catch the Golden Horn boat—all the same as the Coney Island boat, yes? How many tam I gone there weel' my pretty—my pretty Nayima. She is dance there one summer. When I sit weel' her some tam those other passengers make the face because Nayima is weel' Osmanli. The rubbernecks is stare. Two, three tams I tweest those rubberneck till they let me alone."

"Here the Osmanli wants to look at a glaur who dars so much as look at an Osmanli lady. I think the world is a jackass."

"Bine-by we goin' to come to—what you call, the lock-up, calaboose, yes? There is put the thieves, the killers, the bad men. Today is put also in the cooler an Osmanli girl—very nice family, but she loves a Greek. It is terrible theeng to love a Greek, but maybe she don't, can't help it. She say she goin' to marry him. The police arrests the Greek and the girl also too, for it is a great crime, such a marrying."

"They take the bad girl and the glaur to the jail, and they are goin' to bring them to be tried. But the—how do you say?—the mob does not like it. The mob gets together and says, 'Keel the glaur. Keel the shameless girl.'"

"Bine-by some soldiers come and drive the mob away. But maybe the mob comes back. Me, I should not weest to be that girl or that Greek feller."

This was doubly shocking news to Jebb for it invaded his own recurrent dreams of Mirum.

They were now descending a silent street whose dogs like prowling hyenas only gave the loneliness a terror.

Out of the murmurous silence there rose a sound like waves tumbling on distant shale. It was a tumult-clamor mystified by distance. Hafiz listened with lifted head, like a rhinoceros sniffing the air for danger.

"The mob is there again. Queeck!" And he was running with a speed his bulk had not implied. Jebb followed, stumbling over the refuse in the streets.

A bonfire had been lighted in the square before the district police-station. The windows were ragged with broken glass. The door hung on a fractured hinge. In the square, nearer the fire, a man and a woman were struggling within a tangle of bloodthirsty fends who clutched at them, struck at them with clubs, and slashed with knives.

Hafiz groaned: "The mob is get busy. See, that is the Greek—that is the girl."

The crowd boiled and sworled like eddies choked with debris.

Dragged by the lure of horror Jebb and Hafiz moved slowly down the hill. They saw the Greek, fighting like another Leonidas against an Asian horde, sink under a smother of enemies, only to reappear gashed, bleeding, but fighting on. The girl's plight was more ugly, for she had none of the mad exultance of the deth struggle of man against man. Here was the odium of being torn to pieces and of dying in naked shame.

Clutching talons tore her hair loose—her veil had long since been torn away. Jebb could look no longer. He dashed forward and hurled himself into the maelstrom, yelling, cursing, striking right and left with his fists.

Though he was too frantically desperate to know it, alongside went Hafiz Mustafa, bellowing like a bull charging a pack of wolves.

The men on the outskirts of the throng took the newcomers at first to be only zealots like themselves, fighting forward to the always holy office of sticking a knife into an infidel. But their progress was too furious to be long misunderstood; Hafiz and Jebb had hardly pierced the outer shell of the mob when the cry rose that they were themselves infidels to the rescue of infidels. And now knives were turned their way and bloodthirsty fanatics ringed them round, forgetting for a moment the young lovers, who, unsupported by their enemies, fell to the cobles to be trampled underfoot.

The huddle was beginning to mumble threateningly and to brandish fists and knives in Hafiz' courageous face, when the ragged noises were stirred by a noise with a rhythm and regularity to it. It meant soldiers.

Without delay the mob stampeded outwards and was dissipated in the dark alleyways. When the patrol debouched on the square, the tenuous moonlight showed only two men erect, and two figures on the ground, one very still, one writhing.

Jebb paid no attention to the officers, but knelt by the side of the girl whose wounds he examined with a certainty that proclaimed him a physician. Hafiz interpreted, and he soon had the patrol so busy on his errands that it forgot its main purpose.

After a while of Jebb's ministrations the bruised lips began to murmur. Jebb bent close and heard, but could not understand. He beckoned Hafiz to kneel by him and the wrestler explained:

"She wants to die in her lover's arms."

But the body of the young Greek had been carried away, and she died alone, slowly, with anguish of body, of heart, and of soul.

When she was quite dead, Hafiz murmured to Jebb that unless he vanished he would be detailed indefinitely as a witness in the trials that would result from the riot. Waiting the proper instant, he dragged Jebb up a steep street, down another, and so on and on till they reached the steamer landing. But the last boat had gone. With some trouble Hafiz found a kaik, and in this water-hansom Jebb sped down the Golden Horn among the slumberous laps. He thought of Mirum and felt that she was as far from him as the present still regent in the city.

And then he realized that he had lost the Gladstone bag once more.

"The next boat she is just waiting now," said a fezzed clerk, pointing to the steamer already gliding from her mooring.

There would not be another until the following Saturday. Jebb was tempted to leap overboard and swim after it. He was restrained by a realization that he could not swim.

The next morning, Sunday, he was so desperate that he went to church—the Episcopal chapel of the British embassy not far from his hotel. After the service he sauntered in the park of the Petits Champs and sat at a table to watch the crowds pell-molling past. He ordered coffee as a payment for his seat.

Suddenly he felt a hand on his shoulder. It was so unexpected that he jumped as he turned. He glanced up into a grin entirely surrounded by red hair. He heard a voice which seemed also to grin. It said:

"Hello! how's electricity?"

Here was the answer to a riddle that had vexed him, and he was tempted to demand at once:

"Who are you? and what have I to do with electricity?"

But he had found it more profitable to listen than to disclose. All he said was:

"Sit down, old man, and have something to drink."

"I'd give a finger for a cocktail, but I suppose I'll have to take coffee."

Jebb was fermenting with questions but the stranger seemed content to watch the crowd and wait for the Kahveji to fill his cup.

Finally Jebb ventured:

"How do you like Constantinople by now?"

"Oh, I've always liked the old town. Not quite as lively as Chicago in some ways, livelier in others. I suppose you will stir things up a bit."

"Perhaps," said Jebb, still baffled.

"Funny old town, Constantinople, nearly as big as Philadelphia and older than all get-out, and not an electric light or trolley car in the whole village."

"It is funny."

"You'll change all that, eh? I suppose you've found the new Sultan a little more open to reason than the old, not so afraid of his people. Have you found it hard to get at the bosses?"

"Not very."

"I suppose there's the same hand out for graft here as everywhere else."

"Well, I haven't had any special trouble in that line," said Jebb, growing weary of fencing.

"You really think you'll pull it off?"

"I hope so."

"I don't suppose I'd dare ask whether you represent the General Electric or the Independents?"

"That would be telling."

"I judged from your talk on the steamer that you were acting pretty much on your own."

"Yes," was all Jebb dared to say, his mind taking a new whirl at the word "steamer."

"I judged from your talk, Mr. Pierpont, that you had enough capital in your jeans to dazzle the city fathers here."

Jebb's heart sickened. So this was more of Pierpont's brag.

"I suppose when you go back you'll go by land. Those Austrian Lloyd steamers pitch and toss atrociously, and the 'Franz Josef' is the worst of them all. I've got used to it, but you seemed terribly unhappy."

Jebb laughed, as much as to confess. And the man went on:

"Yes, when you got on at Trieste I said to my wife, 'I'll bet that fellow has a sad voyage.' You looked sort of greenery-yellow and off your feed."

"I wasn't in the best of health."

"You're all right now, though, I judge. That's the effect of a few weeks in Constantinople. She's a great old town in spring, eh?"

"She certainly is. By the way, did you notice how the little girl was?"

"What little girl?"

"The one I had with me at Trieste."

"You didn't have anybody with you. I noticed specially, because they were just pulling the gangplank in when you jumped for it."

Jebb's heart lurched, but he kept a rigid face.

"Oh, of course, the little girl wasn't with me at that time. Have some more coffee."

"No, thanks. I must get back to the hotel. I'll be mighty glad when you get your electricity. The lighting of this thing fierce. You'll if you'll rig up a bulb. That's the for their illumination see you again, Mr. "So long—old man. He must learn at Trieste was, and quickest way of getting. Hoping that some ruma waited him telegraphed the U ward his mail to the sulate in Trieste. Leaving Constantin retracted for many rails he had taken. It was strangely to be in motion. W Jebb at his destiny had a destination flight of the express. He breakfasted in garia into Serbia, stretch his legs at proved to be—Nist. "So long—old man."

He must learn at once just where Trieste was, and what was the quickest way of getting there.

Hoping that some word from Miruma waited him in Vienna, Jebb telegraphed the Union Bank to forward his mail to the American consulate in Trieste.

Leaving Constantinople the train retraced for many miles the same rails he had taken from Salonica.

It was strangely comforting just to be in motion. Whatever awaited Jebb at his destination, at least he had a destination, and the swift flight of the express was exhilarant.

He breakfasted his way out of Bulgaria into Serbia, and prepared to stretch his legs at the next stop. It proved to be—Nish!

The word came with a shock, sending him back to his first waking in Turkey and the first sound of this barbaric word on an ear that found "Uskub" equally harsh. And now somehow through the mellow enchantment of memory, the word Uskub always fell, with music on his senses.

STATE OF MAINE

To all persons interested in either of the Estates hereinafter named: At a Probate Court, held at Paris in and for the County of Oxford, on the third Tuesday of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, from day to day from the third Tuesday of said October. The following matters having been presented for the action thereupon hereinafter indicated, it is hereby Ordered:

That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by causing a copy of this order to be published three weeks successively in the Oxford County Citizen a newspaper published at Bethel, in said County, that they may appear at a Probate Court to be held at said Paris, on the third Tuesday of November, A. D. 1939, at 10 of the clock in the forenoon, and be heard thereon if they see cause.

Charles W. Whitman, late of Norway, deceased; will and petition for probate thereof and the appointment of Ellery C. Park as executor of the same to act without bond as expressed in said will, presented by Ellery C. Park, the executor therein named.

Witness, Albert J. Stearns, Judge of said Court at Paris, this third Tuesday of October in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine.

"I prescribe them sometimes," said Jebb.

"Oh, you're a doctor, eh?" Jebb was angry at letting slip even that information.

"Great food, great medicine," he said: "I've got a sample or two in my suit-case." And nothing would do but that Jebb should test his wares.

"Talk about your undeveloped American resources, doctor," Ludlam rattled on like an encyclopedia that must disgorge its load. "The true field for Americans is over here. I'm making a specialty of this country. The silk industry for instance; they make silk rugs by hand

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NEWS

JACKSON-SILVER POST AND AUXILIARY ENTERTAIN

Jackson-Silver Post and Auxiliary successfully entertained the Oxford County Council meeting Saturday, Nov. 11. Beano was enjoyed all the afternoon in the Legion Hall, in charge of Herman Cummings, Charlie Clifford and Joe Barrett. Each winner carried home a real live chicken, as, also, did the lucky ones at the rifle shoot.

Approximately 150 attended the public baked bean supper served in Town Hall by the ladies, under the supervision of Mildred Cummings, Edith Littlefield and Cora Bennett.

"The Novelty Trio" of Phillips began the program by rendering several pleasing numbers, followed by a reading, "Topsam Fair," by John Withers of Rumbold. The Misses Helmi and Cathryn Cummings of West Paris sang two duets, then the Lamb twins, also of West Paris, favored the enthusiastic crowd with four songs. Wayne Redman of Bryant Pond played two violin solos, with Margaret Howe, Bryant Pond, at the piano. Closing the program was Henry Stone of West Paris, who did a comedy sketch.

County Commander Fred Rowell of Norway presided at the county meeting that was attended by delegates from South Paris, Norway, Oxford, Dixfield, Bethel and Locke Mills. Robert Mills, commander of Phillips Post, was introduced and thanked for bringing along an act for the program.

Everett Foster of Dixfield spoke briefly on the Forty and Eight's plans for 1940. Com. Rowell spoke of the tendency of many to minimize the victory of the World War and pointed out what "might have been" had the Allies lost. Meeting closed in form.

Old and new dances were enjoyed till a late hour by the smooth music of "The Lambs' Rhythm Orchestra."

In a brief get-together in the dining room Mrs. Mary Farnum was presented a gift in honor of her golden wedding by Clara Jackson.

The Post added the name of Comrade Silas Kenniston to their membership roll recently.

Comrade Alanson Cummings was on the sick list Armistice Day.

Comrade Joe Barrett was rushed to Togus Hospital Monday afternoon for an emergency operation for appendicitis. Comrade A. Cummings left him doing nicely late Monday evening.

Regular meetings, Friday evening, Nov. 17. Units to be called at 7 sharp.

The next meeting will be held on Nov. 23 with Mrs. Mabel O'Brien.

Toys for the Rehabilitation chairman are to be brought or sent in by individual members. A quilt will be made and donated for the State Rehabilitation program at this meeting. All members are urged to attend.

Those from Bethel attending the Council meeting at Locke Mills were Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, William and Patricia O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Naimy and sons, William and John, Mr. and Mrs. John Meserve, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Van Den Kerckhoven, Mr. and Mrs. A. Daniel Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Watson, Olive Lurvey, L. Adeline Fish, Milo McAllister and Leslie Coburn.

The Auxiliary were guests of the Legion Wednesday evening, Nov. 15. The ladies and children were served with an oyster stew supper. About 50 attended.

The second district council of the American Legion Auxiliary will hold a meeting with the Lewiston Unit Saturday, Nov. 25. Members desiring to go kindly contact Tola Forbes or Frances Bennett.
